And I'm _____. Today is November Ninth, Two-Thousand-and-Nine, and it's a blue day! Lets start the day off right with this week's Panther TV Media Monday, your weekly dose of movies, music, and television releasing. Be sure to look for these hot movies coming out on DVD and Blu Ray High Definition tomorrow: Up. is Pixar's newest family flick about an old man going on one last big adventure after his wife passes away. Little does he know a young boy scout stowed away on his flying house. Together they must defy all odds against them in Paradise Falls to save a rare bird and defeat a famous adversary. Also look out for The Ugly Truth. Katherine Heigl stars as a TV producer who teams up with a TV talk show sensation played by Gerard Butler in order to snag the man of her dreams. In the music department, Bon Jovi is coming out with his newest CD, iThe Circle / When We Were Beautiful and The Killers are releasing iLive at Royal Albert Hall to physical and digital music distributors tomorrow. Tune in next Monday for more media updates!

In recent news, late this past Saturday, The House of Representatives passed a bill that could change America's health care situation drastically. The Affordable Health Care for America Act was created to provide monetary assistance to those who cannot afford health insurance. It restricts insurance companies from denying coverage to anyone with a pre-existing condition and prevents companies charging higher premiums based on gender bias or medical history. Obama calls The House's passing of this bill ihistoric but knows that passing the bill through the Senate might be more difficult. For more updates on this bill's journey, keep tuning in to Panther TV.
